- Another fight today. I am not sure the man grasps what he is doing to his son. The boy is so young but he almost has him trained like a dog at this point, standing there all proud and saluting. I will not allow my son to be paraded around like a little soldier. I do not want my son to be in the army, or worse a politician! We fight almost daily now the

-t can not go on like this. Today he insulted my profession. “Spirituality and Healers. Nothing but the weak and those without drive. Lazy!” he said. Im sure the look I gave him could have made a dragon keel over dead.
The nerve, calling ME

lazy?! -----

-a good day. We had a gentle picnic on the north beach. It is days like this that make you forget the bad times I guess. Addies

3rd Birthday, he really likes the water. He and Hervan just danced and played in the water for hours. I had to make them both come in, they were freezing but neither wanted to stop! -----

----- He had poor
Addie standing on stacks of bricks today, teaching him to stand up straight.
THE BOY IS THREE
YEARS OLD!!!! -----

----- The moongate has been acting strange, today I went through it and ended up... somewhere.
Wherever it was, it wasn't Minoc. I went immediately back through,
Hervan thinks I am crazy.

----- All the Magincian nobles got together today to talk. That is all they ever do, lots of problems recently... its like we are not welcome on our own island anymore. Every little thing goes wrong.
And of course the nobles are too proud to ask for help from Moonglow or Britain. Maybe I should take Addie to Yew for a while. I think Herv would kill me th-----

-----y is it so hard to understand that a simple life can be just as important and great as one marked with power and pride? Addie could be a farmer, a healer, a scribe even! The man has the boys life all planned out at three years old!

Squire, Paladin, Noble...
Hervan is obsessed with the Chamber of Virtue in Britain. Those days are past, why can't he grasp that. Humility is a virtue too! Dolt of a man!
